YAN's Day Care Center children celebrate Fourth of July

On July 2, the Yavapai-Apache Nation Day-care Center had their annual Red, White and Blue parade in the Middle Verde community. The children decorated their bicycles and wagons and each child also had their face painted with these colors. The YAPD officer Lori Ortega led the children down Smith Street on to Shaw Street as the teachers helped the children pass out candy along the route. This annual event brings parents, families and the community out to see the children with all the colorful decorations. Child Care Manager Ophelia Tewawina, above right, stays close to the children as they walk and greet all the well-wishers along the way." Photos by Margie Campos

Nation's Wild Land fire crew fights California fire

In late June, a massive fire began near the town of Markleeville, California and the Nation's fire crew spent 10 days fighting that fire in July. Known as the Washington Fire with over 1400 firefighters on the line at one time, the Wild Land fire crew had the opportunity to use their skills in squelching the fire that still had embers on July 31. Brian Marquez, trainer and director of the fire suppression program says that department is always looking for new recruits. The age requirement is 18 years or older and the type of crew is known as a Type II hand crew. November starts the open enrollment for new trainees. Courtesy photo
